III. General professional experience:

Mr. Ingber currently maintains an office in Manhattan, engaging in the general practice of law. He has practiced law since receiving his law degree in 1976 from Columbia. During 1991 and 1992, Mr. Ingber was of counsel to Marilyn Simon & Associates, a small firm specializing in bankruptcy law. In addition to drafting pleadings and memoranda of law, he made several Bankruptcy Court appearances on behalf of the firm's chapter 11 clients. Prior to establishing his own firm, Mr. Ingber was for six years an associate with two prominent New York law firms, Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz and Moses & Singer, where he specialized in securities, corporate and commercial law.

IV. General pertinent experience:

Mr. Ingber has mediated scores of divorcing couples and has, from time to time, mediated commercial disputes as well. He has served as a staff member of the Divorce Mediation Project at the Postgraduate Center in New York City. He has participated as lecturer in several mediation training programs given at the Postgraduate Center and by the American Arbitration Association. He has for several years served on the American Arbitration Association's Family Disputes Panel and Commercial Disputes Panel.

V. Mediation training:

In February 1981, Mr. Ingber took a five-day intensive training program in mediation, given in Washington, D.C. by the Family Mediation Association.

VI. Pertinent bankruptcy training:

During 1991 and 1992, Mr. Ingber was of counsel to Marilyn Simon & Associates, a small firm specializing in bankruptcy law. In addition to drafting pleadings and memoranda of law, he made several Bankruptcy Court appearances on behalf of the firm's chapter 11 clients.

VII. General pertinent business or legal experience:

After leaving Moses & Singer, Mr. Ingber was for four years an Assistant Professor of Law at the University of Bridgeport School of Law, where he taught courses in business organizations, commercial transactions, secured transactions, bankruptcy and alternate dispute resolution.
